The common (combined) function of these organs is (the production of) the five vital airs, breathing and the rest. 30. The function (or action) of the four (the internal organs and an organ of sense) is declared to be either instantaneous or consecutive with regard to visible objects; the function of the three (internal organs) with regard to an invisible object is preceded by that of the fourth. 2 In Distich 29 the distinct individuality of the three internal organs is affirmed, i. e. , their functions in the formation of ideas are never interchanged; but they have a common physiological function assigned to them, 1 Swalakshanyam, specifischeun-prior function, but the function of terschiedenheit (Petersburg Diet.), the three (internal organs) is pre 2 Tatpurvika vrittih, not, as Pro-ceded by that (the action of a sensefessor Wilson translates it, their organ). E and that is the maintenance of the five vital airs. 1 The word employed here (vayu, air or wind) does not mean the elemental air, but a subtle inward force or action, necessary to vitality and independent of sensation. According to Gaudapada they are--1. Prdna, breath, the ordinary inspiration and expiration. 2. Apana, downward breath, the air or vital force acting in the lower parts of the body. 3. Samana, collective breath; so named from conducting equally the food, and c, through the body. 4. TJdana, ascending breath, the vital...
