Governors meeting further emphasizes the importance of enhanced disclosure and discussion of the implications of all of its retirement-related obligations. Further, the reduction in future pension obligations would increase the Services options for dealing with its postretirement health obligations and other financial challenges. For these reasons, we believe that the Service needs to enhance its disclosure of its postretirement health obligations in its financial reports. Importantly, a number of major employers have provided disclosures relating to these types of obligations for several years. In addition, the consolidated financial statements of the U. S. government include extensive disclosures of these obligations on a government-wide basis. Without sufficient disclosure of these obligations in the Services financial statements or the related footnotes, neither Congress nor stakeholders can have adequate information needed to make appropriate decisions related to these issues. We continue to believe that, at a minimum, these obligations should be discussed in the notes to the financial statements. -----We are sending copies of...
